Missouri Rural Health Association Launches New Learning Management System to Serve as a Central Hub for Rural Health Education

JEFFERSON CITY, MO, March 25, 2026 – Missouri Rural Health Association (MRHA) proudly announces the launch of its newly developed Learning Management System (LMS). This innovative platform serves as a centralized hub for rural health education across the state. Designed with user experience at the forefront, the LMS is tailored to meet the unique needs of rural health providers, advocates, and communities; helping to remove barriers that often limit access to vital information and training.

The LMS strengthens Missouri’s rural healthcare workforce by expanding access to high-quality, essential education. The platform offers a range of webinars, workshops, and courses designed to improve healthcare delivery and keep communities informed of policy changes. Built specifically for rural stakeholders, the LMS ensures that critical resources are both accessible and relevant. The LMS is sponsored by Aetna and is available at no cost to all members of The Causeway. As a centralized hub for rural health education, the platform enhances access to essential training opportunities and supports ongoing professional development across Missouri’s rural healthcare landscape.

“We are excited to launch the LMS, we know that education is a transformative force that can improve rural health outcomes and is an invaluable resource for our rural communities,” said Libby Trammell, Community and Digital Advocacy Manager, MRHA. “The LMS will allow us to expand our connections, increase our impact, and better serve our state”.

“At Aetna, we believe that every community —no matter how rural or remote—deserves access to high-quality care and the training that sustains it,” said Dr. Michelle Bucknor, Regional Chief Medical Officer, Aetna Better Health. “Our support for MRHA’s new Learning Management System reflects our commitment to strengthening the rural healthcare workforce. We are proud to help equip providers with the specialized education they need to deliver safer, more effective care for Missouri families”.

The Missouri Rural Health Association is a nonprofit organization dedicated to safeguarding and improving the health of rural Missourians. MRHA fulfills its mission by providing leadership on rural priorities through advocacy, partnerships, and education. For more information about MRHA visit mrhassociation.org.
